The Real Estate Sore Spot
Father Coughlin Testifies
Optimistic Mr. Woolley
By Arthur Brisbane

MADAM KRAMER-BACH, French newspaper writer who lunched with President Roosevelt, quotes him:
"Congress would never approve the sending of troops in Europe, nor anything resembling a military expedition, but would not hesitate to apply economic sanctions with all Americans. 'Once was enough.'"
The second part about "economic sanctions" against aggressive nations is, many will hope, an innocent question. There is a strong feeling that the United States should limit its own business, and that European countries must on fighting each other, let them fight.

France, especially, as she has proved for more than a thousand years, is well able to take care of herself, except occasionally, when she gets in the hands of some foolish Napoleon Third.
Frederick of Prussia, great military genius, considering the natural and geographical influence of France over Europe, said:
"When I see how France, with her small army, is able to defeat, and even to conquer, the vast armies of Prussia, I am convinced that the French people are a great nation, and that the French people are a great nation."

It is customary to blame "big business" and "Wall Street" for the depression. Giving the devil his due, it may be pointed out that the worst feature in our depression is the real estate situation, foreclosed mortgages, buildings empty. Big business and Wall Street had nothing to do with that.
Also you hear complaints that banks are not lending money. They will lend it fast enough, if you give them security that they consider good. Now they offer to lend you bills at a half of one per cent for short terms, three-eighths of one per cent for 90 days, three-quarters of one per cent for 120 days. And there are few bills to be discounted.

Banks are urged on one side, to lend money freely and they are told, on the other side, by government authorities, that they must be careful about their loans. They keep their "liquidity," which means plenty of cash on hand. To do that, they must keep collecting loans as rapidly as possible.
A banker's life is not what it once was.

Clarence M. Woolley, who runs many kinds of big businesses, with various big payrolls, is optimistic as all good Americans should be. In Louisville, his factories, his plumbing materials, biggest factories there, are at work after the shutdown. And the biggest department store in the city shows an increase of 40 per cent during the first weeks of August.
Mr. Woolley spent his summer vacation on the highlands of Northern Mexico, shooting and fishing, and wishes you to know that Mexico has a marvelous summer climate, wonderful sports if you like to shoot or fish, all comforts for travelers and a most courteous, obliging population. More travelers from the United States should visit Mexico.

The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, heard by millions when he talks on the radio, tells a court investigating bank failures in Detroit that two national banks were "wrecked" by the Coughlin campaign, that more than 100,000 people lost the heads of the masses was a menace.

Many had and still have that idea. No matter how much "Tevie" they want, they won't get it. They won't slip into the grave reaching for more dollars. But they fear the masses might stop working if the lack of necessity were removed from their backs.
There was once prevalent, here and elsewhere, the idea that "education in the heads of the masses was a menace." The British governor of Virginia threatened that there was no public school in Virginia in his day, and hoped there would not be one for another hundred years.

He who has escaped from that idea about education and who has public schools. Perhaps he'll be away from the idea of money that Father Coughlin describes.

WIFE PUTS UP NOSE TO GET HIM FREE

Bond Fixed at $25,000 in Protest; Banker Doves He Will Talk

Daniel C. Mulloney, indicted ex-president of the wrecked Federal National Bank, won the first major point of his court battle with the government today when he secured his freedom for $25,000 bond—half the amount demanded by Special Ass't. U. S. Atty.-Gen. Irving G. McCann.

Mulloney's wife posted the bond to their unimpaired $250,000 estate, which is in her name, to secure the bond.

McCann pressed for $500,000 bond, but was forced to be content with the lesser amount when he admitted to Judge James A. Lowell that the government had no "inside information" that the banker planned to run away.

"TIL TALK LATER"

On order of McCann, the bail financier indicted Monday and arrested in New York Tuesday, made a belated appearance in federal court this morning and pleaded not guilty to charges of falsifying reports and misappropriation of $75,000 of the bank's funds before its collapse 20 months ago.

"I'll have plenty to say when the time comes," was his defiant statement to newspaper men.

That long murmuring came from public officials (not on the roster) who were making ready to stand up on their hind legs and yell that other public officials, who at various times during the said junket, headed north on public funds to study the Canadian liquor laws, had learned all there is to know about them long since.

Salem, Aug. 25.—John A. Deery, 1st president of the closed Salem Trust Co., which was an affiliate of the closed Federal National Bank of Boston, was taken to Superior Court today as a witness. Deery was called as a witness in the effort of State Bank Commissioner Arthur G. to collect $75,000 from the Massachusetts Trust Co., which bonded the officers and employees of the trust company against theft and improper use of funds.

The suit is before Arthur P. Bickford of Boston, as auditor, and Deery's testimony was perfunctory.

Deputy Superintendent Martin H. King was named today by Police Commissioner Eugene C. Sullivan to succeed the late Michael H. Crowley as superintendent of the Boston police department.

Capt. William W. Livingston of Division 4, South End, was appointed deputy superintendent in King's place.

Appointment of King as superintendent ended many months of speculation, and at times made one debate over who would eventually succeed "Old Crow."

By the new order, which will be read at tonight, Division 4, Jay St., will be abolished as a separate police sector, and will be divided in halves to be appointed to Division 1, North End, and Division 2, West End.

Capt. James C. Clavin, now in command of Division 3, who was assigned to Division 4, in place of Capt. Livingston. Thus the new vacancy among the captains will have been created.

Appointment of King was announced even while the body of Crowley was being laid into its grave after a marvelous last tribute in which 10,000 people participated; "the superintendent is buried—long live the superintendent."

POINT IN EVIDENCE

The "evidence" included an old side hammer with which he demolished a retaining wall a few nights ago while hundreds of persons looked on, a can of yellow paint, an old door and a "mystery" of the court.

Before the trial began he had pushed a wheelbarrow two miles from his home to the courthouse with "evidence" for the defense of himself.

HOOPER FOR PRES. MAY NATIONAL BANK CRASH, MAY SENATOR

LIQUIDATED SOLIDLY AS BANKS REOPENED, HE SAYS

Vandenberg Charges At Hearing In Detroit U. S. Policy Spelled Doom To Many Institutions.

Detroit, Aug. 25 (AP)—Relating his "inside story" of Washington events preceding the Michigan bank holiday, U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, (R, Mich.), told the one-man Detroit bank jury today that as early as Feb. 9—five days before the state's famous holiday—Herbert Hoover, then President, was "greatly disturbed" over banking affairs here.

"He said it could easily become the start of a great banking debacle, and that it must be checked at any cost," said Vandenberg.

The witness, in a calm recital of events that contrasted sharply to the fiery denunciations hurled yesterday before the jury by the Rev. F. Charles E. Coughlin, crusading priest, detailed a conference at the White House on the night of Feb. 9.

BANKERS DISTURBED
Clifford B. Longley, president of the Union Guardian Trust Co., of Detroit, and Col. James Walsh, vice president, came to the hearing in Detroit of Feb. 9, he said, to advise him they were attempting to obtain a declaration of emergency to close the banks.

The witness said the two men appeared "much disturbed" over a report that an effort was being made to liquidate the Union Guardian Trust Co. and the Detroit National Bank, which had been closed since the Michigan senator said that Walsh and Longley did not want to meet Coughlin to know about the liquidation.

WHITE HOUSE MEETING
The junior Michigan senator said he was summoned to the White House that evening, where he "sat" on a conference attended by Hoover, Coughlin, Chief Justice Miller, then president of the R. F. C., and Hiram W. Mills, then secretary of the treasury.

He told the jury, which is inquiring specifically into the closing of the Union Guardian Trust Co. and the Detroit National Bank, that Hoover declared he was depending on the Michigan senator to be checked at any cost.

Father Coughlin, released from the witness stand after being told he would be subject to call for his testimony if officials deemed it necessary.

Longley and Walsh, he said, were seeking a R. F. C. loan on assets which they reported were worth $8,000,000. The R. F. C. loan, he said, amounted to $45,000,000 to $45,000,000, with an understanding that the Union Guardian Trust Co. was to be liquidated and provided a cash capital of $5,000,000, which was provided for the creation of a new savings company to handle the loan.

PLAN EXPLAINED
He said that after relating the circumstances of information that he had received to the effect that an R. F. C. official had told Senator Vandenberg that the Michigan senator "did not want us to show him the liquidation plan," he was told by the Michigan senator that he was to be liquidated.

"They said there was no reason for secrecy," said Vandenberg, "but that it was a matter of fact that they felt, to enlist the aid of Senator Coughlin, in obtaining the loan. They were greatly disturbed over this development."

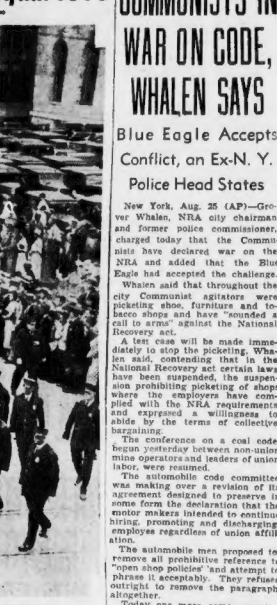

He said he believed the two had liquidated their information to the R. F. C. official's statement from a previous interview with Senator Vandenberg.

ALARMITY FEARED
"The subject of discussion at the time was the possibility of a panic in the market."

Radio Priest's Testimony Draws Bankers' Fire

Detroit, Aug. 25 (AP)—Federal charges today against the testimony of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, who told the Michigan bank jury yesterday that he had been told by President Hoover that he was depending on the Michigan senator to be checked at any cost.

"There will be Federal indictments," he said, "and we are to be indicted."

STAIR TO TESTIFY
"As for my own connection with the Detroit Bankers Co., I accepted the title with the greatest reluctance and then only as an honorary position. What worries me, we were given freely, by eliminating three high-ranking officers of the bank."

STAIR NAMED

U. S. FINANCES DISCUSSED BY ROOSEVELT

Woods Park, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt went deep into the question today of public and government finance with his two chief fiscal aides.

With William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury, he talked the whole situation over last night and today at luncheon, the President had with him Lewis Douglas, Budget Director.

There was no indication of any new move either for inflation or for a change in ownership of the highly important office of Treasury head, but the two meetings nevertheless seemed significant.

The President talked over very seriously with Mr. Woodin the question of the latter's portfolio. He is desirous that his intimate friend keep the Treasury portfolio, but he is not going to permit it at the expense of Woodin's commission.

As for inflation, Mr. Roosevelt and his aides still decline to discuss this undefined subject. The President is determined there shall be a gradual and steady rise in prices and wages. How that shall be continued he is devoting to no one and he is proceeding as he feels the situation demands.

There has been talk that Douglas and others would succeed Woodin, but it can be stated very definitely that the President has not spoken to any man about the office. Mr. Douglas has requested today's conference. The budget for the new government year is in the making.

BARBER SEEN AT FIGHT ON MOONE DEATH SPOT WILL ENDED

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 25—Officials here today planned to renew their questioning of Alfred Texeira, 34, wandering barber, in connection with the death of Mrs. Louise B. Palmer, whose unslain and slumbering body was found in Hampton Falls on Aug. 14.

With Texeira identified by a resident as the man he saw with the slain nurse on the road near where the body was found and his identification by a neighbor of the dead woman as the man who had gained with him over the price of a dog, police believe they have two significant developments on which to concentrate.

He is being held in $2000 bail charged with misconduct, while police are continuing their questioning. Yesterday, Clara Page, 40, came forward voluntarily and told police he was driving home at 1 a. m. July 13 and saw a man and woman standing on the road a short distance from where the woman's body was found.

He positively identified Texeira as the man but was not certain about the woman.

Kidnap Death Penalty in N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP)—Governor Lehman today signed a bill providing a death penalty for kidnapers in cases where their victim has not been returned prior to the kidnapers' trial and providing a penalty of life imprisonment in some other cases.

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 25 (AP)—The contest over the will of Albert W. Noone, wealthy Peterborough manufacturer and Democratic candidate for governor and United States senator in 1930, has been "satisfactorily settled" out of court, the law firm of Hamblett & Hamblett of this city announced today.

Noone died in August, 1932, leaving the greater part of his estate, valued at more than a half-million dollars, to his private secretary and friend of long standing, Maj. A. E. Doyne.

Two nieces, Mrs. Katherine N. Dull of Boston, and Mrs. Mary L. Farrel of Peterborough, who were left $100,000 and another relative, Gordon Estabrook, of Boston, who was not mentioned in the bequest, brought suit to break the will, claiming the testator was subjected to undue influence and was of unsound mind.

Mrs. Duck Buried in Family Cemetery

Mrs. Curtis Clark, the South End woman who provided elaborate funerals for her pet cats and dogs, has been buried at Oak Grove cemetery, Fall River, according to word received from there today.

At the time of her death, police announced that only $100 was found among her effects and that a Potter's field burial might be necessary. Later it was found she had some means, and owned a lot in Fall River, where her mother, Mrs. Hattie Warhurst, resides.

'LOST' YACHT IS SAFE IN PORT

Metapoint, Aug. 25—A hit amused at reports that they and their 40-foot yawl had been lost sometime yesterday in one of the worst storms that ever raged across Buzzards Bay, Barnard Lynn, 31, of New Bedford, and Charles E. Tinker, 22, of Bryantville, showed off this morning for New Rochelle, N. Y.

"I don't know where they got those stories that we went through the Cape Cod canal and out into that storm," said Tinker today. "Maybe we're amateur sailors, but we're not crazy."

As a matter of fact, their auxiliary engine went dead just off Metapoint and they put in here to wait for the storm to blow over. The two men will pick up Henry Bodie, of New Rochelle, at the Royal Club there, and then set out for Buzzards Bay.

The Keyhole on the News

No Love Bureau

G. A. Loveland, meteorologist at the Federal Building, answers more day high questions than any other person in the vicinity of Boston. Nothing, apparently, is of greater interest to the general public than the present proximity of Venus and Jupiter in the sky.

"Jupiter is moving toward Venus," says Mr. Loveland, "and the usual flood of questions have developed. I would be greatly relieved if it were made quite clear that I am an authority on the romantic aspects of his situation. I am merely a meteorologist."

Indecision

Officer Archie Rinaldo, of Station 5, encountered the loud and dumpy man leaning against the post on which was the police box.

"Looking for trouble, eh?" said the loud one as the officer strode up to report in.

"Why don't you home, Windy?" said the policeman.

"Oh, yeah," piped the breathless owner, "tough guy, huh?"

"If you don't want to get run in, beat it," said the cop, putting in his call.

"Ain't got a friend; ain't got a cent; don't know where to go," said the saturated one, looking down at his tattered shoes.

The cop handed him a dime, as he turned to resume his beat.

"Say," he yelled, "the peat, 'what's this, charity? I thought you were going to yank me in. Are you tickle or just nuts? Hey, if you ever come across yer mind, make it up—say!"

So the officer withdrew the dime and called a vehicle.

Lower Mathematics

Arthur Sturgis, economist employed in the task of straightening out the Boston "L" wage problem, had turned to a vast batch of dialogue on high living and low wages.

"Wouldn't it be fine," he said, "to get back to facts, or to catch up with facts. In issues like this I encountered invariably a weird type of figuring. All totals are reached by guessing at one half and multiplying by two."

Courage

Paul Hutchinson who was in Germany this summer, declares that he most courageous speech he heard in protest against Nazi tactics was made by Dr. Sherwood Eddy, while in the Reich.

"Nothing impresses me more than courage," says Mr. Hutchinson, "and Dr. Eddy's speech was a perfect representation of it. Mind you, people were not talking up in those first days of Nazi power. He did though, and he said what most people think about persecution—through the ages. I've never heard a more eloquent, Christian or statesmanlike address, but you may be sure not a paper in Germany printed it."

Scotch Verdict

Chief Justice Wilfred Butler of the municipal court has before him a young man charged with peddling. The court was not very definite in the matter but there was a certain menace for the young defendant in these words:

"You were undoubtedly peddling, according to the construction of the term. You had merchandise for sale and you were barely moving." The court passed. "But you did not sell any pronounced not guilty."

A court attendant whispered, "That's what the Justice calls a Scotch verdict... Gully, but not very."

About People:

That pretty girl who is often seen driving that car through the hub with the registration No. 34, Governor Joseph B. Ely's daughter, Miss Chas. Schuchman, and his wife, Judge Sadie Schuchman, are summering in their Sharon cottage. Dorothy Campbell, stenographer of the fire prevention department, is often seen on the bridge paths. Frank Jones, as lazy summer afternoon should be spent fishing. Corporation Council Samuel Silverman got his fight by having sold newspapers in that tough section of Dover and Washington streets. "Harold 'Rabbit' Warrick, the shortstop, has the reputation of being the best quartet tenor on the Red Sox. Senator David L. Tilton, who has the next Harvard football coach in an accomplished singer and actor, preparing for his mayoralty campaign, does most of his heavy thinking while taking long walks through the town. Tom O'Connor, secretary of Fire Chief Henry A. Fox, never misses those Sunday afternoon double-headers of the sensationalizing Braves. Senator Joseph Mulhern, who is quite a sportsman, is especially great over of horses. Dr. George Troy Bigelow, head of the Massachusetts General Hospital, cares for neither golf, bridge nor football—He's rather enjoy himself skilling with youngsters. Edmund J. Roy, clerk of the fire prevention department, has one net racket—Tennis.

AVOID THE DANGER OF CONSTIPATION
Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, sallow complexion, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to extrude the intestine and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green packages. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

This is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

MY INCREASING suspicion that even in the arts brains are quite as important as temperament and personality is borne out by Helen Hayes' recent pronouncement, which is the best thing that has come out of Hollywood for years.

Helen Hayes has been one of the genuine and unsuspected successes of the picture business. She is no longer very young, as youth goes in Hollywood, and most certainly she does not look like a bathing beauty contest winner. In addition she has the final handicap of being a lady and of looking, behaving and speaking like one.

And yet, with all this against her, she has definitely made the grade at Hollywood. It must be brains. I can think of no other reason. The film industry is probably calling her an ingrate. It has given her the opportunity to make a great deal of money, far more than she could have made in the shabby Broadway legitimate theater. For on Broadway today nobody, it seems, makes any money except the mechanics and technicians, people whose jobs are, or should be, subordinate to the real business of the drama. Anybody can shift scenery or turn a light switch. Few people can really act. Yet for years the mechanics have been getting the cream and the real entertainers merely the skim milk of the theater.

And yet, knowing that pickings are thin on Broadway, Helen Hayes is turning back to it, giving up a large four week bonus, because she feels that her duty is to the theater. Perhaps in addition there is the canny thought that Broadway can perfectly well get along without Hollywood, whereas it would seem of late that Hollywood finds it hard to get along without Broadway.

What Helen Hayes says is grimly true.

"Hollywood should be made to pay its toll to the theater," she remembers the dozens of film actors who owe their first chance and subsequent fat contracts to Broadway. There they learned to speak, behave, impersonate on the stage. The talent made them indispensable. Now, snugly ensconced in Hollywood, they forget their old loyalty to the legitimate theater which gave them their training and their start.

She suggests that such people pay their debt by returning to Broadway semi-annually, even at the cost of large salaries.

"The citizens of the United States pay a tax to the government to maintain the schools—and the theater has been our school, our market, everything. We shouldn't let it struggle alone, now that death threatens it without us."

That last phrase, "without us," strikes me, and a sense of values. Broadway, in spite of Hollywood, will go on attracting talented and intelligent young people, training them, giving them reputation and opportunity. Sooner or later it will lose them to Hollywood, but new recruits will take their place.

Helen Hayes is wise in going back to Broadway, before Broadway forgets her. The street forgoes easily. It loves new and fresh talent; it can be cruel to one-sided people who have dropped out of its ring of lights. One cannot think that the Barrymore brothers, George Arliss, Mario Dreyer, even Mae West, do not have moments of strong nostalgia for a real theater with a real audience and real applause. If they wish to hear it again before it is too late, they had better make haste. Broadway will not remember them forever.

Miss Hayes' notion of splitting her time between Broadway and Hollywood might be an entering wedge towards one reform which I personally have longed for. If Hollywood is full of Broadway actors, why must all the great Broadway successes be sent out from Hollywood with a new cast? The news of them has gone out through the country by means of the illustrated magazines. People know who is acting in a hit.

Then the picture is announced, with a brand new cast of Hollywood stars, and theater lovers are disappointed. Why not try for once the experiment of putting the original Broadway cast into the film made from a notable play, and see what happens? My guess is that it would do quite as well as with a special hand-picked Hollywood cast. "Dinner at Eight," for instance. The cast is crammed with Hollywood names. But the original cast did pretty well on Broadway. If my memory hasn't gone completely blank.

Anyway, Helen Hayes has given us more to think about than all the film publicity put together for the past ten years.

'GREASE PALMS IN CAMBRIDGE JAIL AND LIVE LIKE KING'

Grafting Guard and Trusty Tell Prisoner How Big Racket Works; "Save Your Prune Juice for Shot"

By A STAFF REPORTER

Officially entitled as a prisoner at East Cambridge Jail, illegitimate prey for the racketeers.

The East Cambridge system is another "noble experiment" in prohibition.

Even good food is prohibited.

But like the now fading experiment in liquor prohibition at the U. S. A., the bans just give somebody a chance to profit on the sly.

"You're locked me over."

"Got any dough?" he asked.

"What for?" I said.

"Because if you got dough, you can get about anything you want in this place, from soup to nuts."

"How's it done?"

"You gotta learn the system. But after you been in a while, you can buy damn near anything in here that you could outside."

Bootleg in Jail

Served Own Liquor

I soon learned that you don't even have to learn the system. You are influential on the outside.

A prominent bootlegger, who went in as a prisoner one afternoon, was provided with a quart of his own best product the next morning.

Moreover, food delicacies were smuggled in to his cell every night, in spite of the fact that he was in the House of Correction where outside food was barred even for those who could buy it.

My schooling in the racket was only beginning.

As I started for my cell a prisoner, I showed a guard toward me. I was kept moving and did not have a chance to examine the contents until later. Another prisoner dropped two slices of bread in the pan.

Acting on orders, I went to my cell, put the pan down on a small stool and, turning, pulled out the master lever clamped at the end of the bar. I was shut for a 25-hour conference with evil smells and friendly voices.

Then I looked into my meal pan. A few chunks of potato were half-submerged in a creamy paste. A chunk of carrot rested at the edge of the swamp. A few tiny shreds of meat floated on the surface.

For the next 15 minutes I did my best to eat, with the aid of a plentiful sprinkling of pepper, which I found in a shaker on the table that served as my dining table.

At last I surrendered. I went hungry. I learned afterwards that only the oldtimers at the jail eat the notorious East Cambridge stew.

"You Got to Know Guards Who Graft"

The man in the next cell was trying to attract my attention.

"Hey, Mac."

"Vay," I said.

"How do you like the road today?"

"Too well done," I told him.

I dumped the concoction in the little red bucket that answers for sanitation at this archaic institution.

A "runner" came along with a staff and pushed the trough of a hose through the bars for me to fill my cup.

He was the jail's grapevine system of communication. He picked up all the news as he went from cell to cell and passed it along.

"How do you like the joint?" he asked me.

"I can stand it for the time I'll be here."

"You'll get used to it. None of us liked the place when we first came in but we learned the ropes. There's a lot of things going on here the 'screws' (guards) don't know about. There's a couple of them that know and they're taken care of."

"If you got the dough, you can live like a prince. Some of the 'screws' would sell their own brothers if you offered them enough dough. Yup, for dough, you can damn near buy your way right out of here."

"You Can't Get Food That's Fit to Eat"

"Can you make me the right connections?"

"Nope. The screws won't touch a man unless he's been inside a couple of months. And they won't do anything for a man that has got free (that six months) to serve. There's too much risk with a shorttimer."

"How about getting some food?"

"I'll be here."

Duce Asks for More Babies

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service Inc.

Rome, Aug. 25.—Speaking from a balcony in the public square at Catania, a climax to military maneuvers, Premier Mussolini last night called on the Italian people to produce more babies.

In a multipurpose address before a cheering crowd of 200,000, parking all surrounding streets, he Duce said:

"We must be strong first of all in numbers, because if the cradles are empty a nation becomes old and crumbles."

"In this square, beneath the Altare della Patria which must never be violated by the army of any foreign people, I want to say through you to all Italian people that 5000 years of human history has given us a clear lesson."

"We must be strong, for strong people have friends, and fat, and no one can question the Italian people's sincere wish for peace. Of this, we have given ample proof. Fascist Italy stands out as the only nation in this 5000-year-old world with a new doctrine of safety and life to give to all the civilized countries of the world."

"Italy will be bigger and stronger tomorrow because we will make it so."

AUSTRIA ARMS TO REPEL NAZI

Vienne, Aug. 25 (1933).—Austria will militarily combat all attempts to abolish her independence, Maj. Emil Foy, Iron Man of Austria, said today.

He said that the armed forces, told International News Service today.

Maj. Foy, who is considered the right-hand man of Chancellor Dollfus, said:

"We have strengthened our borders and will resist to the utmost any attempt by German Nazis to enter our country illegally."

"Reports that we have mobilized troops along the Austro-German border are true. We have merely taken all precautions necessary to quell any trouble."

CAPITALISM IN GERMANY SEEN NEAR DOOM

Following in the second of a series of articles analyzing the first seven months of the Hitler regime in Germany, it succeeds and failures.

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
Copyright, 1933, by International News Service, Inc.
Berlin, Aug. 25 (U.S. News)—Germany today is outwardly as peaceful as a Sunday school, but under the surface, smoldering fires are threatening to flare into major conflagrations.

In the National Socialist party is a group for more radical than Hitler himself, kept in hand only by the one hand common to all Nazis—a blind, unswerving worship of the führer.

They do not believe the government has gone far enough in its fight against capitalism, and recent events indicate that eventually there will be a showdown and that capitalism is doomed.

"SECOND REVOLUTION"
This fact is a fact and will be the cause of a second revolution, and it is a fact that the second will be a more radical one than the first.

At the time of the revolution, the National Socialist party was a small group of extremists, but it has since grown into a powerful force.

The revolution must be carried on until the capitalist system is wiped out and replaced by a German economic order, international capitalism must be crushed.

It was Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, who said: "In the course of the year we will experience upheavals, which will make what has already taken place appear as but an exercise."

Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, minister of culture, said: "The National Socialist party is a party of the future."

THE TROOPS RAMPANT
All over the country, Nazi detachments are appearing in increasing numbers, and today the capital is defended by 100,000 troops.

The capital's defense is in the hands of Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, both millionaires. Their influence, however, is waning.

The bulk of Nazi strength is in the army of 500,000 storm troopers, who if business does not improve, may move against the army, and it may not be as bloodless as the first.

Tours Naval Stations
Washington, Aug. 25 (U.S. News)—Swanson will leave Sept. 7 for an inspection tour of navy yards and naval stations on the West Coast, about 10,000 miles, it is announced.

Wife Posts Mulloney's Bail of $25,000 in U. S. Court

and he had read them, and was in ignorance about the case. Mulloney was in the apartment at the federal building at 845 North Main St. at 10:30 a.m. and was told by the office of U. S. Marshal Charles J. Kelly that Mulloney and Mrs. Mulloney had been arrested.

The banker turned court north at 10:30 a.m. The two indictments of a total of six counts were read by Clerk Frank Mason and to read Mulloney and "Mulloney" in a clear voice, McCann immediately made him for $25,000 bonds.

"CASE GRAVELY IMPORTANT"
"In this case," he said, "the government feels the charges are of great moment and that the bail in the case should be adequate to insure the presence of Mr. Mulloney here when wanted. The government feels the bail should be set at $25,000."

Judge Lowell asked for bail for Mulloney and Mrs. Mulloney. They had no money, and Mr. Mulloney said there was no need of such an amount of money in this case. Mr. Mulloney has always been ready when wanted. He lives in Magnolia. His family is in the city. His children are three.

"Mr. Mulloney has been and is available in Boston and elsewhere ever since the failure of the bank. He has testified in various cases here since the closing of the bank. He has testified voluntarily in Worcester in bank cases. He has been in conference with Reverend Pearson of the bank and has been available to anybody when wanted."

CALL SHIGH BAIL UNFAIR
"He was arrested in New York when he was in the house a fugitive from justice, and as soon as he was released on bail there he returned to Boston. There has never been a word about the amount of bail," interrupted Judge Lowell.

"The amount is $25,000 at present with a surety company bond," Taylor said. "Mr. McCann asked in New York that bail there be fixed at $15,000. It seems to me that the request of bail of $25,000 is out of line and very unfair in Mr. Mulloney. Your honor must have read in the newspapers about this case."

"I've read nothing about this case," Judge Lowell interposed. He added, smiling, "I'm in a state of ignorance."

SAYS BAILER IN WRONG
Continued Taylor: "There have been indications of the most scandalous nature regarding Mr. Mulloney in the newspapers. I wish to assure your honor that Mr. Mulloney's interests in fact everything he has—were wrapped up in London and Massachusetts. There has never been a suspicion by Mr. McCann, that I know of, for making such excessive bail."

The assistant attorney general replied: "The defendant is charged with misappropriating $25,000 and with making false report to the controller of the currency. There is also in another indictment in which he appears. The government has much money in working on the case and has one number down."

"A man like Mr. Mulloney," continued the prosecutor, "who has been head of a $25,000,000 bank, should be able to provide $25,000 bond."

"What I'd like to hear from you," suggested the court, "is what are the chances of Mr. Mulloney not appearing when wanted?"

"I have no knowledge except what appears in the indictment against him," said McCann. "We have no inside information that he is going to run away. But this is a very, very serious charge against him. The friends of his brother about me suggested bail of $25,000 in New York. The reason we asked that there was a make certain of his appearance here."

"I'll take bail of $25,000 on the condition of judgment and personal responsibility on their part," the court said.

NO TRIAL DATE SET
"Will you recommend $15,000 on the misappropriation and $10,000 on the false entry?" he asked.

"What do you say to that, Mr. McCann?" court inquired.

"All right, I agree to that," he answered.

"The date was set. Mulloney was taken to the city hall at 11:30 a.m. and returned to Marshall Street after while his wife appeared in the court.

place before the grand jury was originally turned up by Special Agent Parkhurst, whose investigation report to U. S. Atty. Frederic H. Tarr was said to have contained sufficient evidence for grand jury action.

An officer of the bank is said to have given stock of the bank to a value of $500 to a lawyer who sold either his "straw" or a loan of his note for $25,000 for stock. It is said, was surrendered by the lawyer to the investigators.

LISTEN, WORLD!—LIVING TODAY IS THE BIGGEST CHALLENGE EVER MADE TO HUMANS

But I'm Glad, Says Elsie Robinson

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M GLAD I'm living today!

Yes—I know it isn't a comfortable day in which to live. Nor, for most of us, a profitable day. Not, perhaps, even a very safe day. Everything is a mess. All our old weaknesses and hypocrisies are being shown up. All our old ideas are coming due. Our favorite programs have gone to smash. We haven't as yet established any new program to fit our altered times and needs. There is, in short, only one fact about our present era on which you can safely bet—it's a Tough Time for anyone to tackle.

And yet—

I'M GLAD I'M LIVING TO-DAY!

Life today, in daring men to do something harder than they've ever done before. Men have faced plenty of hard things since they first crawled down out of tree tops into caves, out of caves into tribes. They've faced saber tooth tigers and mastodons—fire, famine, flood, war and pestilence. Each new age has meant a new step to take, a new risk to run.

But today life is daring men to take the longest step, run the greatest risk in all human history.

Today life is forcing men to face themselves.

Daring men to fight their own selfishness and greed, laziness and stupidity.

And believe you me, that's the hardest job we weak and worldly humans have ever taken on!

It's easier to face a hundred other tigers—of envy or greed, of fear or fame—than it is to learn how to shape one of your own thoughts or control one of your own habits. For the first only requires courage. But the second task requires INTELLIGENCE. And intelligence will take more than your comfort and conceit than any other force on earth.

So the job we moderns are facing isn't going to be any snap. And it will be all the harder because, for the last hundred years, most "civilized" citizens have been living mighty soft. A few of us have been doing all the difficult thinking, taking all the dangerous risks. But the Average Man needed to do—had a chance to do—was to go to sleep. Do what some boss told him to do. Believe what some authority told him to believe. Fit into the niche which somebody else had prepared. Follow a pattern which somebody else had devised. Lead a canned life. All the real work and worrying was done by the Master Minds. And what a swell mess they made of it!

SO NOW IT'S UP TO US!

Now each of us... you and I... individually... have got to get out and get under... and learn how to run ourselves and our country.

Now, at last, we must stop being marionettes, manipulated by the Master Minds... and learn how to be men!

Will that be easy? No! It won't be hard... it will be humbling... it will be maddening... it will completely get our goats! We'll lose money at it—and friends. And get the worst beating of our lives. But, oh boy, what a grand scrap it will be!

Why am I glad that I'm living today? That's why! BECAUSE HERE'S THE BIGGEST CHANCE AND THE BIGGEST CHALLENGE THAT WAS EVER HANDED HUMANS!

Can I take it? Make good on it? I don't know.

BUT I'M GOING TO HAVE A SWELL TIME TRYING!

AND WHAT A BANG I'LL GET EVERY TIME I SUCCEED!

"New flock of pigeons," said one of the passersby.

"Those are gulls," said another.

"Well," replied the first, "gulls or boys, they're a fine flock of pigeons."

Some New American Children's Styles

WHEN MADAME SCHIAPARELLI, clever Italian fashion designer, went back to Paris after her visit to these shores this summer, she took with her an entire American wardrobe for Gogo, her daughter... endorsement indeed for our clothes.

No one could resist a touch of material when looking at American children's fashions. Their ease and habit and sophisticated—all in one. Little copper-colored youngsters steal many of her mother's pet fashion notions for themselves. For sports they wear identical sweaters and skirts, matching mother's. One-year-olds and up wear oldish cashmere suits. The idea of cufflinks at the wrist is genuinely masculine, borrowed first for feminine sport clothes, and now lifted bodily for tiny tot's dresses. Believe it or not, some dresses we've seen were no longer than 18 inches in length!

The much cannot be said for our habit of dressing brother and sister alike. When sister wears a simple little dimity dress, brother signifies his approval by wearing a shirt of the same. When she wears a bright blue or red knitted suit, too, this habit matters. Their gloves are the same, except for finger attaching on sister's. The boyish coat of polo cloth with heavier collar, or without fur, is duplicated on sister.

In the picture, that young girl wearing dark dress and hat is said to have autumn's first cool day. In fact, each child is dressed in typical autumn fashion. You might keep this picture in mind when you're shopping for their next set of clothes. This young girl's sweater and skirt is dark blue, with male blue yoke and flag insignia (cabin brother's adorns on front).

The little girl in the finely checked red, black and white outfit looks ready for school. And indeed she is, for she could be made appropriate curled up on a chair in the cutest child of all. She wears her little air long and straight, with a bow. Her sweater and cardigan, in which she looks like a grown-up in a fashionable dress, are of red and brown. The bands on the sweater are of red.

American make best wardrobes for the little ones, as told in the accompanying descriptive article at the right.

WHAT WOULD YOU PAY TO RECAPTURE THE LOVELINESS THAT USED TO BE YOURS?

A Creamy Facial Mask Made of Rare Herbs Has the Added Advantage of Massage

By Therese Deschamps

YOUTH—that is the thing we all seem to want—unless we have it. When we're really young what endless bother we'll go to to convince the world that we are really grown up! And then, next day, or so it seems, we are grown up and wishing to be young again. It's eternal and inevitable. That is why we are all so interested in keeping our figures, faces and hair in condition, and we are all so anxious to get the best of everything. We say, "It's beauty we seek, but don't you agree with me that it is really youth and all that youth stands for—vigor, courage, health, energy, spontaneity?" And the answer is "Yes." As for the appearance of youth, we can help you. We are spending our time hunting up new tricks, new cosmetics, new methods by which your skin, hair and eyes can be restored, or retain the loveliness of youth.

Facial Mask

We haven't told you so far about one facial mask that we know of that is made of rare herbs, twenty-three of them, compounded in such a way that the mask has a creamy consistency. This one spreads over her face like the night's mellowing cream, manages it into the pores until it begins to dry, then it dries for a few minutes, applies a second coat and leaves that on for about twenty minutes or longer if the time is available.

It is as refreshing as an afternoon nap. In fact that might be said of almost any of the facial masks, there is a stimulation to them that not only works on the tissues and blood stream but on the disposition as well. One feels right when she looks well; perhaps that is the answer.

How to Use Them

Both dry and oily skin can benefit by such a mask. For the dry skin it is recommended that one use first a creamy cleansing cream, then the mask. After the mask has been on as long as you wish to have it, the face is washed with hot water to remove all vestiges of the herbs. Next one can use a milk lotion made especially for dry skins, and over that a bit of nourishing cream or a powder base—again one that is made for dry skins. For the oily skin, the nourishing cream might be omitted and a mild astringent lotion used to close the pores and refine the skin's texture. If the skin is particularly sluggish, relaxed, and dull, the application of a stimulant either before or after the mask is great for hastening results.

Beauty Questions and Answers

Blackheads

Question: I should like to know how to rid my skin of blackheads. They are worst right around my nose and chin—Miss R. T., Cambridge.

Answer: One of the best preparations we know of is a gritty soap powder with which one actually scrubs the skin. If you skin is sensitive, you can use a cream, afterward to tone and dryness. The preparation can be used once or twice a week, depending upon the skin.

AGAIN, THE INCOMPARABLE MARLENE

Fashion inspiration this season has sprung mainly from two motion pictures. Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong," and Marlene Dietrich in "Song of Songs" (opening this week at the Metropolitan).

Travis Banton to Be Thanked for 'Yes-Dear' This Season's Two Leading Fashion "Inspirations"

By Margaret Matson

ALL THE CONVERSATION about the fashion leadership swinging from Paris to our own Hollywood seems to be well-founded when we realize that this season's two leading style influences, the 1930 clothes and the 1907 and '10, began really with the two motion pictures, Marlene Dietrich in "Song of Songs" and Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong." And both wardrobes were designed by Travis Banton, one of the leading costume designers in Hollywood.

Furthermore, it was very largely the Letti Lynton dress designed by Adrian that started the vogue for huge upstanding sleeves. His, too, was the large organza bow that has been placed on the front of such models of frocks this past season or two. And many others. When we see Greta Garbo or Joan Crawford or Norma Shearer or Marlene Dietrich in something quite priceless, it is human to want to get it for ourselves.

Paris has realized that fact as well as the Hollywoodians themselves. And Paris it was that pointed upon the idea of copying the styles of the 1930s.

Time Is Ripe

Now we wonder if the fashion world is ripe for the copying of the styles of the 1930s. It is a question of time. The time is ripe for them. And it is exceptionally fitting.

When you see the feather trim on a multitude of hats when you see the off-the-shoulder neckline, the broad slanting brim, the quiff of jewelry, the dainty, fringing, and the like, the time is ripe for them. And it is exceptionally fitting.

THE TENNIS STARS are taking to shorts. It is a question of time. The time is ripe for them. And it is exceptionally fitting.

Make the Most of Versatile Corn Flake for Crust

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAR.

NOW THAT SWEET POTATOES are with us again and fairly good in quality, why not serve sweet potato balls with next Sunday's roast chicken? There's really nothing more delicious in the potato line and a good surprise and admiration when the potatoes cut into the first potato ball more than repays one for the slight extra trouble of preparing these delicious balls with a fluffy marshmallow mysteriously serving in the center.

Here's how we made them Wednesday in the Martha Lee Cooking School.

Sweet Potato Balls

4 cups sweet potatoes, mashed
1 tsp. pepper
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup corn flakes
1/2 cup crushed corn flakes
1/2 cup marshmallows
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup water

Corn Flake Date Cookie

1/2 cup dates
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
Remove the stones from the dates, and boil dates, sugar and water until soft.

1 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup baking powder
1/2 cup salt
1/2 cup water

2 cups corn flakes
Cream the butter, add the sugar and beat thoroughly. Add the flour, which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt, then the water, and beat the corn flakes. Roll the cookie dough thin, and cut into rounds. Spread one round with the dark marshmallow, and put a second layer on top, pressing the edges together. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for 10 to 12 minutes.

Body's Filter System Care Important

By DR. R. C. COPELAND

I AM SORRY to say that kidney disease is still one of the most common causes of death. Though our knowledge of this disease is rapidly increasing, it is still a mystery to many. It is a disease of the blood, and it is a disease of the body's filter system. The kidneys are the body's filter system, and they are the body's filter system. They are the body's filter system, and they are the body's filter system.

Most doctors of the kidney are of the opinion that the kidney is the body's filter system, and they are the body's filter system. They are the body's filter system, and they are the body's filter system.

Dr. Copeland is a specialist in kidney disease, and he is the body's filter system. He is the body's filter system, and he is the body's filter system.

He is the body's filter system, and he is the body's filter system. He is the body's filter system, and he is the body's filter system.

PAGE GRANDMA! GIRLS KNIT KNITTING BACK IN FAVOR

Life is getting so "darned" simple, what with straw hats, lily pads, and all the other things that are so easy to get. Just another evidence of the drift towards simplicity. Society women—dolls, mittens and pin-dog-eared dowerers—are knitting their lives away these days. You admire a smart housewife in some devastating color on one of them and invariably she'll enter "Just a simple little thing I ran up myself."

The department stores' yarn shops, it became known yesterday, are doing a land-o'-thunder knitting wool and giving free instruction.

The Episode at Woodland and the Tennis Amateur

—By AUSTEN LAKE

For example, the minor larceny at Woodland where two young golfers peeled off from 10 to 18 strokes from their actual scores, aiming to snatch the expensive silverware prizes, there was no question of technique such as the arc of their swing or the position of the sand trap. There is merely the human problem of temptation. The prizes were not too far away. The boys were dazzled by the splendor of the prizes and the elasticity of golfing's honor system. And I have no doubt that there have been many amateur golfers in minor tournaments who have been trimming their scores for years, just as there are certainly many professionals who have been cheating for years. It is unfortunately enough to restore their boyhoods without detection.

The Percentage of Weakness Is Small

Take Off Amateur Disguise and Come Into Open

Now mind you, one grants that the laborer is worthy of his hire, so that one does not begrudge Vines and his stabmates the support that tennis affords any more than one does on the mass of college football players who receive books, tuition and other emoluments for being bled and bruised for the glory of the highest bidding alma mater. For where there is a large cash income, as in amateur tennis and college football, it is reasonable that the players should get their percentage of the take.

My feud, though privately I do not give a damn, is with the overlay of purity on a core of professionalism and the hypocrisy among sporting gentlemen who in other things are holy sticklers.

Not long ago, before the stock market exploded and reduced many of the old rich to the neovex paupre, many a generous alumnus would buy sleazy, second-hand neckties from their college's football stars for several hundreds of dollars, or bet large sums with a bookie, so that he could get a jump over a water polo team. But there was the case of Vincent Richards, who was turned pro, when a Florida real estate promoter, who wanted his tennis services in a tournament that was going to boom his subdivision, bought a half million dollar life insurance policy through Timine's agency. And while Richards kept his end of the bargain and the promoter paid the insurance, the promoter had died before the Florida real estate and the promoter was a bankrupt. And then there was Susanne Langlen, who refused an offer of $20,000 a year to turn professional because she said that her amateur income approximated that amount as it was.

Of course, I could not elaborate because the subject is endless, and we'll see, unless my tennis and golfing friends stop twitting me on the scandals in the professional lines of sport, what I am very sensitive about.

2nd Place Braves Outhit Yet Drub Western Foes

By JOE CASHMAN
The schedule handcuffs our Braves today, amid three r.e.s.n. cheers and a mighty sigh of relief from the Polo Grounds.

Will McKechnie's heroic henmen must be idle and trust to the gods for the prize. Perhaps the former is to foil the Giants' attempt to increase their axe-man's home stay against the West.

That idea should have been mentioned in the ranks. A lot of the ball players of Iowa have been his best of all, and he has been a good deal of a success in his mates, but, however, it is not the kind of home stay that the boys in the different states are other group of damned in this respect.

They'll discover, when all the columns have been added up, that the past week has been their most prosperous of the season.

Last Saturday morning, they sat in fifth place, eight games below the roof. This a.m. they are perched in second place, only six games back, as a result of winning six games in a row from the Pirates and Cards, while the Braves were winning twice and being rained out on four occasions.

The Tribesmen complete their series with the Cards in a single game tomorrow. The lowly Reds will follow for a four-game engagement.

So it seems as certain as any-

QUICK CUP FINAL AT WESSAGUSSETT

ORIENTAL TIED WITH NIPPER IN SERIES

By E. B. SCHREIBER

The fate of Quincey's historic challenge trophy hangs in the balance today as the Class 18 fencers began their third and final round at Wessagussetts. Today the contest had moderate spectators and for the first time the spectators were on the race.

Wessagussetts was the first day defending in the Nipper, had a good chance to win a trophy for another year. The contest was a close one, with the Nipper and Quincey both having a good chance of winning it. The Nipper was the favorite, but the Quincey was the underdog.

The method of scoring these races has caused some discussion. In the first race the contestants were given a point for starting, a point for finishing and a point for the last touch. With a tie in the first race the Nipper was given a point for the last touch.

SCORING DEBATE ON
In the second race, which only one boat started, the Nipper was again given one point. Shortly in line with the first race, the Nipper should have been given only seven points, as she defeated only the five other boats which actually started.

Had the second race been scored after that fashion, Oriental and Nipper would still be tied at 11 points each. Oriental, however, would have a point for the last touch, while the Nipper would have a point for the last touch. The Nipper would have a point for the last touch, while the Oriental would have a point for the last touch.

Onward a chance suffered a severe decline by the Nipper in the second race. The boat was the first to start, but she was not the first to finish. She was the first to start, but she was not the first to finish. She was the first to start, but she was not the first to finish.

SPREADING SAIL IN DEFENSE OF TROPHY

Leslie Rawding's Nipper, which set sail today in the final of the historic Quincey challenge cup race at Wessagussetts. This is for Class 18-floaters. The Nipper is defending champion and is favored to retain its trophy. The Nipper is now tied with the Oriental in the series but a protest has been lodged against the latter and is still pending. Today's moderate southerly air was far different from racing in the half-gales of the second race.

Straw Men and the People's Lost Millions

THE Federal National Bank collapsed in December, 1931.

The financial havoc and the suffering caused by this collapse were sustained by the people in a score of communities in Massachusetts.

Eight other banks affiliated with and dominated by the Federal National went down into the debris along with it.

Some 60,000 depositors who innocently entrusted their savings of a lifetime to the Federal and its affiliates bore this suffering.

For more than a year and a half, their funds, amounting to $60,000,000, have been isolated from them, save the scanty dividends that have been allotted from time to time in the interminable and exasperating period of liquidation.

For more than a year and a half, the persons who dominated this banking chain have escaped any sort of prosecution.

If they have been guilty of malfeasance, of criminal mismanagement or any of the misdeeds which caused private banking to degenerate into a notorious racket, they certainly have been permitted to escape the punishment which the courts summarily visit upon the common offender whose faults leave no such wide sphere of unhappiness to so large a section of the population.

Mr. Mulloney has been indicted by a Federal grand jury. Obviously his indictment was speeded at the last minute lest the offenses charged against him be outlawed by the long and unexplainable delays which have marked the entire handling of the Federal National Bank and its affiliates since they were seized by the National and State governments.

THERE have been civil suits galore. These suits were merely to determine whether the funds still left in the wreckage of the Federal should ultimately be lodged to the credit of the Federal or to the subordinate banks alleged to have been manhandled by Federal National control over them.

These suits have alleged mismanagement by some of the managers of these banks.

They have alleged many forms of criminal practices, all within the scope of the criminal statutes.

They have alleged the juggling of funds among the banks.

They have alleged vast loans to "straw men."

But with the exception of Mr. Deery, who pleaded guilty and went to jail, and with the exception of Mr. Mulloney, who has been indicted on a couple of charges, the whole muddle has resolved itself into a contest among the liquidators of the closed banks to determine which of the banks would collect and receive the funds that have escaped complete dissipation.

It would be interesting to know what criminal offenses, if any, of which the bank managers may have been guilty have been allowed to evade prosecution by the rule of default.

It would be interesting to know what political pressure, if any, has been allowed to interfere with the ordinary processes of the criminal law and with criminal prosecution.

It would be interesting to know whether the long hand of political pressure has reached back and forth between

Boston and Washington to stop the investigation and prosecution that seem reserved to ordinary offenders.

The combination of politics and finance, of politicians and the prosecuting authorities and the courts and the bankers is a racket which should provoke the envy of the slot machine operators.

THE Industrial Trust case was a farce by the time it reached the courts.

The Continental case could be called a joke, if it were not for the misery brought to innocent depositors.

The Exchange Trust liquidation will hardly be completed before the youth of today grow long whiskers.

It is bad enough to see banks wrecked by mismanagement, but it is infinitely worse to see the government of the United States as a major party to delayed liquidation and to delayed prosecution of the offenders.

The depositors of these banks are sick and tired of waiting for the money which rightfully belongs to them.

The people of the State as a whole are sick and tired of the farce which has marked the handling of these banks, from both the civil and the criminal side, since they were closed by the government to preserve their remaining assets.

The people of the State are wondering what criminal offenses in these banks have been allowed to escape by outlaw.

One of the many things that should be investigated by a fair and fearless jury is the manner in which prosecutions have been warded off and what political patronage was dispensed, if any, in blocking action by State and Federal authorities.

Democrats Pledge Fight on Useless Counties

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Elmhurst, New York, was recently the scene of the most encouraging and significant political assembly held anywhere in the United States in a long time. Four thousand Democrats, representing four important units of their party in the State of New York, unanimously adopted resolutions demanding "reorganization and modernization of county and local governments" throughout the Empire State.

These resolutions call upon the Democratic party to pledge its consistent and vigorous support in the practical reform "so as to dispose with useless offices, define conflicting authorities and render responsibility."

Local candidates of the Democratic party are urged by these resolutions "to make the reform and reorganization of county and local governments their platform and to carry the issue to the electorate of the State."

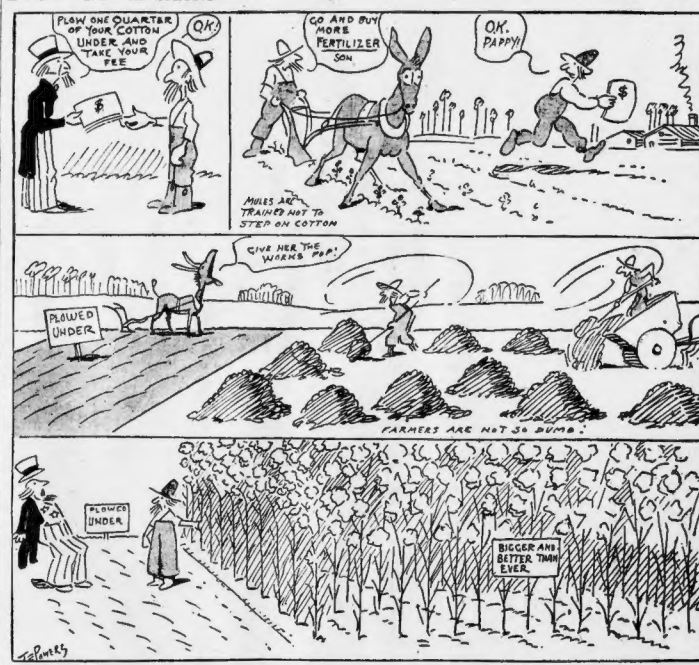

These resolutions are encouraging in the people of every state in the Union regardless of political affiliation because they provide a good platform for Republicans as for Democrats.

Not So Dumb

Various Matters
NEW YORK, Aug. 25—Thoughts while strolling: All the porters at well hotels are Irish with thick brogues. Ed. Wynne's strap-ping feet seem to be a new thing. They're certainly three-sheets too big. No more look-outs at the spectacle. Lester Allen's two dot moustache. James Thurber, a Columbus, O. boy, who made good in the city. Never knew a leading man to be more than 35. A chic dresser, Mrs. Paul Whitman. Sign "Ultra Large Rooms." Sid Solomon's robin bright eyes. Frank Phillips' Ohio home hat. Robert Coleman's the longest sideburns in town.

With Emily Coleman as a runner-up. Mrs. John F. McBurney and Ivy Sawyer look alike. One of my favorite people—Edmond O'Brien. The former Margaret Sinclair of the Pollen. Now lives in a Paris chalet. The Chicago maniac is waxing into chronic floss. Corinne Boyd Dillon, the artist, and her dog. Whatever became of those phoney strong men in vaudeville. Collins and Hartley also warms. Nothing shows me like a gray-haired woman smoking a cigarette along the street. That feather-lunged Grand Central newscast. The San Diego Rooster. One word description of Hal Stealy—Nippy. Hey! I got the sport writer. Ted's closest buddy. And how everybody misses Ted! Of all cities outside the metropolis, San Francisco has contributed artists and writers most conspicuously to New York Journalism. Among lingers, outside of "Ted," were Harrison Fisher, Ruben Goldberg, Rex Irvin, Homer Danforth, Billy De Beck and many others.

New York Day by Day

The great magazine cover artist, Harrison Fisher, was appointed to a San Francisco art department. His first assignment was a political cartoon. He entered the hall in mouse timidity and whispered to a busy reporter: "Is this the Democratic convention?" The barking retort was: "No, Aluytus. This is a drop kick meeting for pained little ladies." Fisher slunk out, his face blazing. That night he was in a beam-skin littered red-plush day coach headed East. A notable instance of acute semimemorial pay dividends. No other artist's work ever adorned the outside page of the Compostorian, a spite the desire of all.

Among younger novelists Louis Bromfield has shown least interest in what publishers call "a personality build-up." He even restrains himself from such hippodroming. Born in Mansfield, O.

The late Speaker Longworth played violin solos for his friends. Vice-President John N. Garner of Texas, is fond of playing poker with his cronies, and is one of the best poker players in America. He won a pot of $100 at poker from his guests. Ohio Vets is particularly fond of small parties and entertainments with the latest money can buy. The late President Hoover has formed the White House of New York, made a hobby of expensive and well-cut clothing, and Harding's favorite piece of music was "La Paloma."

Beauty in Bleak Surroundings
Six tulips blossomed in a row.
Not many, as tulips often grow.
And later, as the month of May,
A penny clump bore blossoms gay.
Scarce thirty feet of lawn was seen,
Yet what there was from weeds was clean.
And through the summer state of phlox
Vied with geraniums in a box.
Adding their color and their grace
To what had been a dreary place.
There is no doubt that garden small
Seemed scarce worth mentioning at all.
But when elsewhere you turned your eye
That tiny lawn looked dark to view
And only bleak neglect could say,
When and to end upon that street.
Your gaze but ugliness could meet,
That penny gay, those tulips few.
That tiny lawn looked dark to view
And told a culture and a care
Which lived undaunted by despair.
